

Dr Vanessa Lapointe

Counsellor, author, speaker, parenting educator and mom.

ABOUT ME

I'm Dr. Vanessa, a speaker, counsellor, author, parenting educator, and mom to two. From my work with parents and children – and from being a mom – I have developed a keen understanding of the powerful connection between healthy child development and the parent-child or "big-person"-child relationship. Through this lens, it is my experience that we can understand everything about the growing child from behavior to anxiety to brain development. And all the in-between stuff too. While the dominant pop-culture of child-raising has left so many big people feeling conflicted with how to grow up kids in the best possible way, I strive to come alongside with empowerment. It is my singular goal that parents, teachers, caregivers, and all the other big people are able to connect with their own expertise and intuition in finding a way through.

My passion in life is to change the conversation about how we make the world go 'round for all of the kids we are growing up.

I want kids to grow up in the best possible way. I want parents, teachers, caregivers, and other big people to know they are a child's answer.

I want the mysteries of brain development and the complexity of a child's needs to feel totally conquerable.

I want your kids to know that you've got this!
And I want you to know that it's going to be ok.

YOU'VE GOT THIS!
